

CLERGY SEXUAL ABUSE

Prevention, Healing & Reconciliation

What structural reforms might help to end the crisis of clergy sexual abuse?

How should the Church respond to survivors of abuse?

Michael Vanderburgh

is executive director of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul in Dayton, Ohio. In 2017 a feature article about Michael's life, including his experience of clergy sexual abuse, appeared in the Cincinnati Enquirer. Since 2006 he has served on the committee that reviews the Archdiocese of Cincinnati's handling of sexual abuse cases, and he previously worked as director of stewardship for the Archdiocese.

Fr. Thomas Berg

is vice rector and professor of moral theology at St. Joseph's Seminary (Dunwoodie) in Yonkers, New York. From 2013-19 he served as Director of Seminarian Admissions. He is author of Hurting in the Church: A Way Forward for Wounded Catholics (Our Sunday Visitor, 2017), and he has commented extensively on the clergy sexual abuse crisis in such media as the Washington Post, First Things, and EWTN.

Thursday, October 3, 2019 • 7:00-9:00 p.m.

Leahy Hall, Room 235 • Kane Forum
At the corner of Jefferson Avenue & Linden Street

Open to the public

For upcoming events, official documents & support resources, please visit:
scranton.edu/about/presidents-office/hrhtaskforce/

Sponsored by:

THE UNIVERSITY OF SCRANTON
TASK FORCE on HEALING, RECONCILIATION & HOPE

THE UNIVERSITY OF SCRANTON
A JESUIT UNIVERSITY